Holding Deposits

A holding deposit will be taken to show your commitment to the property whilst references are taken and the tenancy documents are drawn up. You will then have up to 15 days to complete and sign the tenancy paperwork.

In some cases, the landlord may wish to continue marketing the property until the tenancy is complete. Any offer you make is subject to contract, references and cleared funds, prior to the agreed move-in date.

If you change your mind about proceeding with the tenancy, if any false or misleading information is provided, or something is not advised to us which you should reasonably have done, the landlord is within his rights to cancel the agreement, and you will not be entitled to receive any of the holding deposit. Such information includes, e.g. being on a short-term employment contract, declaring your income incorrectly, inaccurate employment information, failing to advise of previous missed or late payments, ever having had a County Court Judgement served against you.

In this instance, or if by the end of the holding-period you have not completed the tenancy, the landlord can withdraw from the tenancy and remarket the property. The landlord can also keep your holding deposit in full, or agree another date for you to complete the tenancy.

If the landlord decides not to proceed with the tenancy and none of the above applies, the full holding deposit will be returned to you.
